Physics 228 Study Groups
Spring 2016

The Study Groups programs are offered by the university for FREE. Active participation in a study group will help you understand the concepts in a course, which you can then apply to completing your homework and answering questions on exams.

What: Study Groups offer an opportunity for like-minded, serious students to summarize the week’s material and clear up any confusion. Each study group is led by an undergraduate student who will collaborate with your professors so that he/she can help participants in the group

- Get organize
- Understand concepts and principles
- Develop problem-solving skills
- Feel better-prepared for high stakes midterms and final exams

When and Where: Groups meet once each week for 80 minutes. Study Groups are designed for small group work, with a capacity for 12-15 students to join each group.

These study groups are set up to help you understand the material through active, student-centered, and collaborative activities so you can do well in the course. It is your responsibility to stay committed to the group and make the most of the opportunity offered to you.

- Don’t sign up unless you are serious about attending weekly. Attendance is mandatory and will be taken at the beginning of each session. You are allowed 2 absences; on the third absence you will be dropped from the session and your spot will be given to a student on the waiting list. If requested, the course instructor(s) will receive a list of students who completed the study groups.
- All sessions will be filled on a first come first served basis. Once they are filled, there will be no new sessions added. However, you can join a waiting list in case a spot becomes available.
