

Problems with using a list

- Need a set of manipulation rules which determine what gets derived.
 - If rules are too strong, too many, or infinitely many, equations will be derivable
 - If rules are too weak, reasonable correct equations will not be recognized
- Andes I used this approach. In practice, it was found that only simple problems could be done this way – for more complex problems, the computer crashed before finishing the list.